Winter Skin Care

Maintain your skin's healthy glow all winter

With winter right around the corner, it's time to consider a complete cold-season skin care program. In addition to daily application of sunscreen, antioxidants, and the proper moisturizer (read more about this on page 2), regular exfoliation of dead skin cells will help promote a healthy glow all winter long. To follow are a few tried and true methods to keep your skin looking bright even when the weather is not so bright outside.

Microdermabrasion

This is exfoliation at its most powerful! Micro-crystals polish, smooth and exfoliate the face and neck to give a younger, more even skin texture. A series of microdermabrasion treatments can smooth rough texture, even skin tone, fade brown spots and pigmentation, decrease fine wrinkles and improve acne (whiteheads).

Vitalize Peel

Our Vitalize peels provide mild epidermal resurfacing through chemical exfoliation and increased cellular turnover. By repeatedly inducing 2 - 3 days of peeling, your skin will feel smoother, fine lines will be diminished, brown spots will lift and skin tone will be evened.

Salt Scrub

The Salt Scrub is an effective way to exfoliate the skin on the entire body. Using a formula featuring sea salts as well as beneficial oils and moisturizers, the skin is exfoliated and moisturized at the same time. Combine a Salt Scrub with a massage and not only will your skin feel wonderful, but your entire body will feel newly energized. Call our knowledgeable Infinity staff today to schedule a free winter skin care consultation.

DRY SKIN SOLUTIONS

Dry winter air and the harsh elements take a toll on your skin. Find out which moisturizers to use and how to properly apply them.

– By Dr. Schulz

Most of us learned how to moisturize our skin from our mothers. When our hands or face feel dry, we reach for a tube of “moisturizer” and spread some on. There is a better way. When the skin is dry it is craving water! The purpose of your moisturizer should be to seal the water into your skin once the water is there. To make a more significant difference in how your skin looks and feels, get in the habit of applying your moisturizer immediately after patting your skin dry, while it is still damp. If your hands are feeling tight and dry, wet them prior to your moisturizer application.

How many of us have applied a lotion only to realize that our skin is dry and flaky a few hours later? That’s because lotions are mostly water with a little emollient mixed in. Once the water evaporates away, the skin has no significant barrier and is as dry as prior to lotion application. Creams, on the other hand, contain more emollient than water and do a much better job of providing a barrier against water loss. The drier your skin, the heavier your cream should be. For the ultimate in barrier protection, use an ointment.

At Infinity we offer a few options for body moisturizers. For severely dry skin we recommend SkinCeuticals Primacy Hydrabalm, a healing ointment. This product is great for severely dry areas such as the feet, hands and cuticles and lips. I like to apply this to my lips before going to bed during the winter months. First I wet my lips with water, apply my TNS product and then the Hydrabalm. It is a great product for restoring soft, supple skin in a hurry! Patients with severe eczema and other dry skin conditions will also find it to be helpful on their arms, legs and trunk.

For more typical daily use on dry skin anywhere on the body we recommend Vanicream. This product was created especially for patients with sensitivities to common skin allergens. It is a rich cream free of fragrance, dyes, parabens, formaldehyde and lanolin. Think “pure and simple” when you see the Vanicream name. This cream is great for daily use after bathing, is very affordable and is commonly recommended to eczema patients at Town Square Dermatology.

Finally, for those who like a lighter moisturizer but still want something that can improve the dry skin on the knees and heels, consider Ceratopic by Skin Medica. This light cream contains ceramides to help with restoration of the skin’s natural barrier.

Just ask for assistance if you’d like more information and follow these helpful dry skin therapy tips:

- 1. Limit showers or baths to 10 minutes or less and use warm, but not hot, water. Hot, soapy water removes the skin’s natural protective oils.
- 2. Use mild or moisturizing cleansers. See our helpful staff for recommendations.
- 3. At the end of your shower or bath, pat dry with a towel. IMMEDIATELY, while your skin is still slightly damp, apply a healthy coat of moisturizing CREAM.
- 4. Consider softening your home’s water.
- 5. Consider humidifying your home during the winter months.

Say Goodbye to Summer Sun Damage & Facial Vessels

For many patients, soaking in the sun with little to no sunscreen was and is a way of life. But years of sun exposure eventually take their toll and patients start to notice the increased sun spots, vascular lesions and wrinkles that are the guaranteed effects of too much exposure. Luckily, Infinity patients can erase years of sun damage with an easy, effective and non-surgical treatment called IPL (Intense Pulsed Light Treatment).

With the days getting shorter and sun exposure starting to decrease, now is the perfect time to schedule IPL. With little to no downtime, a multitude of complexion problems are addressed by a single treatment! Using a wand that emits a quick burst of light, our IPL specialists can target specific problem areas or the entire face. Many patients also use IPL to remove age spots on their arms and hands.

So, how does it work? Absorption of light energy into skin shrinks dilated vessels, fades redness and lifts brown spots. Collagen is stimulated by repeated treatments.

After the brown spots have darkened and then sloughed off (within seven days), patients experience amazing results with younger looking skin, without the tell-tale signs of too much sun. The staff at Infinity recommends a series of treatments for best results.

The Benefits of Regular Massage

By Terri Nicol, Massage Therapist

For the last four years, I have had massage at regular intervals and the results have been remarkable, so much so, that I decided to make a late career change and go into the field of massage therapy.

Now, as a therapist, it is very fulfilling to witness the effects of massage therapy for my patients. I can literally watch as muscular tension melts from their bodies and relieves their pain. Even more exciting, is seeing first hand the long term effects of regular massage. Whether it's a month or a year, the changes are amazing!

To follow are just a few of the frequent Infinity patient comments we receive:

"I had been plagued with right shoulder pain and lack of mobility for years, within a month or so (after having massage) the shoulder pain was gone and the mobility was restored.
Patricia L., RN, Med ~ Iowa City

"With regular appointments, the strain and tension in my neck and shoulders have decreased, and I feel an overall sense of improved health. My massages are no longer just an opportunity to be pampered, but an important part of my preventative health care." Jean H. ~ Iowa City

The massage therapists at Infinity are dedicated to developing a program individualized to meet your needs. Along with providing many massage techniques, stretches to do at home and postural suggestions, your massage therapist can significantly aid in your wellness program to enhance your health and well being! Call us today to schedule your massage and pamper yourself during the busy holiday season.
